

SCDA makes a difference

... to communities

SCDA supports our member clubs to stage plays and pantomimes in church halls, community centres and local theatres throughout Scotland. Drama is one of the few activities where people of all ages, genders and abilities can work together as a team. In many places, these shows are the only opportunity to experience live theatre.

Our annual One-Act Play Festival has over a hundred entries to local festivals in more than 20 venues throughout the country. From Kirkwall to Stranraer, Plockton to Kirkcaldy.

... and to individuals

Being part of a team is good for us at any age, but particularly important when we're young.

SCDA's workshops and festivals allow young people to participate in drama. Building confidence, developing language and social skills and releasing talents and creativity they never knew they had.

Thank you

By becoming a Patron of SCDA, your generosity allows us to do more of the things we've been doing all around Scotland since 1926.

- Organising our one-act drama festivals, both for adults and young people
- Providing training and workshops through our professional Drama Advisor and in partnership with others, such as the Citizens' Theatre in Glasgow.
- Developing our play library to improve access for our members around Scotland and elsewhere.

Find out more from our website and have a look at Scottish Community Drama Association on Facebook.

Scottish Community Drama

STEP, Suite 88
Stirling FK7 7RP

phone : 01786 440077
web : scta.org.uk

Scottish charity : SC021397

Become an SCDA patron

Give a little extra to let us do more

